Last November, CMS released the long anticipated, new requirements for nursing homes. These requirements/revisions reflect the greatest change in practice and care delivery since 1991. The new mandates become effective in 3 different phases. Phase 1 became effective November 28, 2016, and surveyors are expected to survey within the current requirements for this first phase. In this training, Cat will be providing an overview of the changes, as well as giving guidance regarding survey focus and facility practice. She will review the components of Phase 1 that involve the most significant changes. Residents’ Rights have been expanded to reinforce a resident’s right to dignity, self-determination and person-centered care. As a result, resident preferences, assessment, and person-centered care has become a focal point of the entire survey process. In addition, substantial changes have been made to requirements regarding grievances, abuse, and neglect, as well as Discharge Planning. Not only will the delivery of care and services have to change within our buildings, but policies and procedures must be reviewed and rewritten to encompass the new requirements and actions.

Cat Selman is known for being able to explain a difficult topic in a "common-sense" manner that is easily understood. She will walk participants through each area of concern, detailing documentation content, criteria for facility practice/operations, as well as providing examples of policies/procedures necessary to be compliant.
